

London 17th Dec 1791

Dear Sir

Have the misfortune to relate to you a disaster from fire which has been attended with the loss of the whole of my crop from thirty acres except about half an acre of barley. On Wednesday the 8th inst at noon some scattered snow from leading in the young took fire & away to the strong sea breeze almost immediately laid hold of the barn (which was full of wheat) & two stacks were on fire in an instant with nearly the whole of my agricultural implements indeed so sudden was the fire that a large quantity of poultry & some few pigs were burned in a twinkling, its fury was such that was with the greatest difficulty the house & other premises were saved I then have been deprived of every particle of grain except the small quantity of barley mentioned & am compelled to part with that part of my live stock (pigs) requiring grain & reduce the number of men so as only to keep possession.

There has been within a few days of this year in the Colony & I challenge any person to prove that I have received this year from my farms, the two crops of maize were with the exception of a few bushels entirely swept off by the blinks, notwithstanding the same example I made of several of them, the crop of wheat the year before owing to the culture ground not being then sown in, suffered so much from the continued wind of the Govt flocks & herds that it only produced a narrow margin supply for the men & my own family, the crop now destroyed was the just expected any return from.

I conceive my case to be different to of any person up this River, perhaps in the Colony, our making Fred. Goulburn Esq
 Colonial Secretary

my mind to emigrate to N.S. Was I ever refused by the King of State to the colonies to a Mr. Barnard who appeared to have the management under the King - of the affairs of this colony in the local office, in answer to his sundry stories as to what I knew of wool & tobacco in my excursions in Safety & residence in the N.S. of America, I replied that I had paid attention to neither, the conversation turning to Saw Mills, I said I had paid some little attention to them in North America & the N.S. & conceived them of great utility in a new settlement, he immediately said if I would embark a part of my capital in any thing of the kind it would have the most decided support of Govt - if I had said volumes of the facilities which would be afforded he in all which I have found to be erroneous & concerning Mr. Barnard in his zeal for this colony must have mistaken his instructions, or I never could have been so disappointed, I have built a moderate sized wind mill with the intention of driving mill stones but owing to not being able to procure proper mechanics is not yet completed but sufficiently so as to drive a pair of stones, the present population of Hunters River will not for the next year afford more grinding for their own consumption than will pay the expense of keeping a free Miller & perhaps pay repairs, consequently the whole sum I have laid out in this concern is dead, could I have foreseen the consequences I had been lent to Mr. Barnard's suggestions, I might now have been one of the most independent stockholders up this River my whole attention would then have been paid to farming pursuits & I must from the capital I now had, have done well, I escaped all the anxiety of mind attendant on machinery, but at present I have not a single prospect, not even the indulgence of the Govt - cattle, as when they were sent out at Newcastle I was four men short of the number consequently the cattle fell into other hands, in private life if a person suffers materially from the suggestions & advice of another who has it in his power & is in the habit of bestowing favours he would think it hard when

How favours are distributed to be paid by for want of some legal formality, I took up twenty men in October 1823, the list was lodged in your Office, & Mr. Crawford promised to have the bonds made out & sent down to Newcastle for signature, as it was not convenient for him then to do so, some little objection was at the same time made to two of the men being Colonial venturers, I never heard any more of the bonds but had the misfortune to witness the cattle turn'd over to Newcastle to others, all the Cross the first applicants after it was officially announced they were to be distributed, As the persons holding Govt. Cattle up the River as for the greater part only nominally in possession of the number of men, some of whom have only two against sixteen Cows & others in not a small degree, I should hope that the Excellency would not for the sake of precedent deny me the indulgence of the twenty Cows at this moment as they would enable me to supply the men beyond to prepare for another crop with their produce partly in lieu of annual food (as others do who have this indulgence) which I have not at present the means of procuring, by disposing of some little remaining appurtenances to our former respectability I may be enabled to obtain a supply of such commodities as will purchase grain to supply my wretched family & a few men until next harvest, the general opinion of every one in this neighbourhood is that this last blow is fatal to us, - they are all aware of the enormous difficulties I have had to encounter by being settled too near a penal depot, the immense contributions that the Newcastle prisoners have from time to time laid upon me, especially when on setting off for bushranging, the annoyance my few Cows & working Cattle have met with from the Govt. Stockkeepers driving them off for rewards & other evils too numerous to detail, but which I may say laws almost entirely subverted owing to the removal of the most experts to Paul Maguire & the prompt attention of the present Magistrate to complaints against these offenders, not a person who has been here any time but must have observed the difficulties I have had to surmount in endeavouring to complete what I sent it out upon, a Saw Mill, which I have declined for the present only,

1940

No Colony cannot be construed into a British Hope this Excellency will under all these circumstances afford the indulgence of the twenty laws which at this period would be of infinite value had this disaster not have taken place I should not have thought of making a request which could in any way tend to a breach of rule or establishing a precedent which others might lay hold of, but certainly there is no one who knows the present forlorn situation of myself & family who could ever make any application to the Government to afford me at this moment a subject of mercy

Platt

Your most obedient,
humble servant,
